Georgia Public Library Service launches new website and logo

ATLANTA -- The newly redesigned website of the Georgia Public Library Service is now live at www.georgialibraries.org.

The website incorporates new branding for Georgia Public Library Service, including a logo that represents the role of public libraries as welcoming, innovative and fun places to achieve your goals.

“Our public libraries are the heart of their communities; they empower their patrons, support job seekers and provide educational opportunities for students of all ages,” said State Librarian Julie Walker. “We are thrilled to share our vision and resources more effectively to libraries and the communities they serve through this website.”

The website is a hub for public library directors and staff to easily access the resources they need to improve the lives of all Georgians through their local library. The site also has a new goal, to raise awareness of the positive impact that public libraries have in their communities every day across our state.

Online visitors will now be able to:

- Read and watch stories of the positive impact of libraries
- Explore the impact of federal funding in Georgia libraries
- Understand the many benefits of their free library card
- Easily access continuing education, technology kits, grant information and much more for public library staff through streamlined navigation and text

An online press kit includes:

- Link to a webinar showcasing how to navigate key features of the website
- Shareable social media graphic
- The new Georgia Public Library Service logo and usage guidelines
- Press release
